Profile:

Ammad Waheed's practice focuses on commercial real estate and commercial transactions. He represents a variety of clients nationwide, and negotiates and drafts documents relating to commercial real estate issues. He has successfully handled a diverse range of matters, including real estate transactions involving large, Class-A office spaces, retail spaces, and specialized medical facilities. His corporate practice involves matters in mergers and acquisitions, entity formations, contract negotiations, disposition and acquisition transactions and various other business functions.

Ammad brings broad litigation experience to his transactional practice, enabling him to provide a valuable perspective to clients seeking to minimize risk. He has assisted in several bankruptcy adversary proceedings on behalf of Lehman Brothers after the company's historic bankruptcy confirmation. He also assisted in the representation of Anadarko Petroleum Corporation in a multi-billion dollar fraudulent conveyance case that went to trial.

Prior to joining the firm, Ammad served as in-house counsel and broker for one of the world's largest tenant-only commercial real estate firms.

Ammad is fluent in several languages, including German, Hindi, and Urdu.
